Summary Report of the FDP

Mentoring and pedagogy for teaching for higher education has been the most sought after and one of the most popular cum highly demanded FDP conducted by the E & ICT Academy of IIT, Guwahati. The feedback and post-program execution of the skills of mentoring and pedagogy, being done by faculties of colleges and universities across India, who actively participated in such week-long programs, have shown positive outcomes on students in improving their teaching and learning in such institutions of higher learning. Both the new 'National Education Policy' 2020 and the NAAC has given high impetus on further improving the twin aspects of 'mentoring students' and 'quality of pedagogy imparting teaching and learning of students' by the respective faculty/teaching community in higher educational institutions (HEIs).

A total of 97 faculties from across Assam cum North Eastern states as well as from the rest of India, successfully participated in the online FDP, showering high appreciations for the E & ICT Academy, Resource Person, IQAC and Coordinator of the program for organizing such a self-enlightening cum self-improving academic event. All of the participating faculties were of the view that skills or techniques being learnt from the FDP will surely help in improving the quality of teaching for the students of their respective institutions of higher education.

Most of the faculties conveyed their willingness to visit our college to participate in 'off-line FDP/National Seminar' in near future being attracted by the natural setting of our college as well as by the overall beautiful landscape of Assam. The feedback given by the participating faculties was highly positive about the FDP. In short, the FDP was a highly successful academic event.
